“Aparup” is an Assamese word which loosely translates to mean “unparalleled” or “exquisite” in English.

“Aparup Assam” intends to be a travel companion for tourists visiting Assam.

This book is designed to highlight the lesser known destinations of this beautiful state.

The editorial team would like to extend their deepest gratitude to everyone involved in this project for their gracious support and encouragement.

Message

I am glad to know that the Directorate of Tourism is coming out with a travel guide book titled 'Aparup Assam' on the occasion of World Tourism Day on September 27, 2021 to promote less explored destinations of Assam, with special emphasis on rural and agriculture tourism.

As the travel guide book is an effort to provide comprehensive information on history, geography, climate, flora, fauna of less visited destinations of Assam, it is imperative that the book would prove to be an invaluable guide for the travellers and tourists to discover newer places and witness the enchanting beauty of the State. Moreover, Assam's tourism circuit would also be expanded with tourists visiting less explored destinations with the help of this guide book.

I extend my best wishes to Directorate of Tourism for the endeavour and hope that 'Aparup Assam' would be able to achieve the desired goals.

Dr. Himanta Biswa Sarma
Chief Minister of Assam

Message

It gives me immense pleasure that the Directorate of Tourism, Assam has decided to publish “Aparup Assam - The lesser known destinations” on the occasion of World Tourism Day. I’m confident that this book will serve as a comprehensive guide to all visitors to this wonderful land that is abundant in natural beauty and has a rich and varied cultural heritage — much of which still remains undiscovered by the world.

One of the fastest growing industries next to that of the IT industry is the tourism sector. With better connectivity across the globe, people wanting to know more about different cultures and lands, and with a rise in disposable incomes, the tourism sector had been witnessing a consistent growth until the global COVID-19 pandemic induced restrictions came into play.

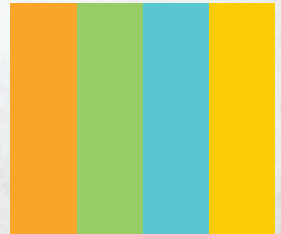

Assam too wasn’t far behind, with the state witnessing a consistent rise in the inflow of both domestic and international tourists.

As with all challenges bringing newer opportunities, the Assam Government has decided to explore newer methods to augmenting the tourism sector. It is committed to taking advantage of this period to develop tourism infrastructure and also explore newer avenues of showcasing its heritage, culture and natural beauty to the domestic and global traveller. The tourism department is equally committed to implementing the various capacity building and infrastructure development schemes announced by the government to bolster the industry.

My best wishes to all the stakeholders of the tourism sector, and I’m confident that all tourists will find this book to be an all-encompassing guide to Assam.

Shri Bimal Borah
Minister of Tourism, Sports & Youth
Welfare, Cultural Affairs and Power, Assam

Assam is known for its pristine beauty. Though the unprecedented COVID 19 pandemic has its cascading effect on Assam; our state of course has shown tremendous resilience to make a turnaround of the pandemic's social and economic impact. Let this World Tourism Day mark the journey of recovery and re-invent the silver lining.

Our tourism, one of the mainstays of our economy is already on its course of recovery. In this backdrop, celebrations of World Tourism Day with the theme Tourism for Inclusive Growth argues well for the state as well as the tourism enthusiasts. Our endeavour during the celebrations will primarily be to project our 'Aparup Assam' and permeate into our 'Lesser Known Destinations' that our Asomi Aai is famous for. It will definitely accelerate the journey to explore the unexplored destinations of our states.

Let us all join hands to celebrate the World Tourism Day to encourage more footfalls for Awesome Assam.

Razvee Shahdeeb Hussain, ACS
Commissioner & Secretary to the Govt. Assam
Tourism and Power

From the Director's Desk Tourism, Assam

The varied geographical setting, the topography, the history of its people, the variety of ethnic communities, their rich heritage and lifestyle, the flora, fauna, and the avian life, make Assam, a kaleidoscopic collage of boundless possibilities.

This land of red river and blue hills, steeped in the rhythm of its own stride is no less than a paradise. A part of it had been explored but a lot remains to be seen and understood. In this sense, Assam is no less than a mini India, exhibiting the glory of Unity in Diversity.

We are living in unprecedented times. In the last hundred years, humanity has never faced a crisis as devastating as Covid 19 pandemic. Millions of jobs were put at risk, a large number of small and mid-sized enterprises struggled to survive, and the world as a whole found itself staring at a bleak and uncertain future.

Tourism is among the industries that have been hardest hit by the pandemic. With international and domestic travel coming to a standstill, the losses accrued by the industry are staggering. Assam too with the rest of the world had to bear this uncomfortable burden of stagnancy and decline. The department within its limits had extended every possible helping hand to the stakeholders. The main challenge was to keep everyone associated with the industry motivated and in the best of the belief that, things would change and it would change for the better.

About a year and a half into the pandemic, we can say that the tourism stakeholders of our state had displayed a great sense of resilience. They have not only stood their ground in these difficult times but exhibited a deep-seated belief in the tourism potential of the state.

Though the situation with regard to the pandemic is still evolving, it is about time that we chart a course towards recovery. The Directorate with consultation with industry experts had zeroed on a threefold approach to achieve this aim –First, improve traveller confidence; second, understand and track new market trends and the drivers of demand; and third, commit to building more resilient and inclusive tourism sectors, leveraging renewed interest in sustainability.

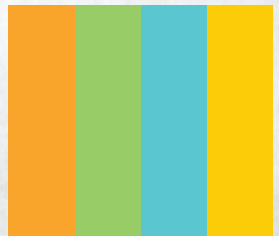

The keyword here is sustainability. Tourism perhaps is the only sector that can sustain, preserve and promote what is local and indigenous. It creates an awareness and a sense of belonging for individuals, within the folds of one's culture, community, and environment.

Embracing what the past has taught us and moving forward, it is time that we start rebuilding our future, brick by brick, dream by dream. We expect a surge in domestic and international tourist inflow as pandemic-related restrictions are eased around the world. But it would be naive to expect a substantial increase. This is where “Aparup Assam” comes into the picture.

The Tourist Guide Book containing the lesser-known destinations of Assam, would no doubt encourage tourists from other parts of India and abroad to visit our state, but it will also motivate people belonging to Assam itself, to explore and experience the nearby districts and places. This will add momentum to the wheels of Assam Tourism, and get it ready and rolling. It may be noted that the list of destinations mention in the Guide book is not comprehensive enough. We propose to keep on updating it as and when necessary.

Last but not the least, Assam carries in itself a great human and environmental legacy going back a million years, which we are duty-bound to protect and preserve. It is necessary that the world knows, experiences, and understands this beautiful state. Only then we can say that Assam is unparalleled, Assam is Awesome.

Mulai Kathoni Forest

A modern day environmental wonder, the forest is aptly called the “Mulai woods” after its creator’s nickname, Padma Shri Jadav Payeng who set on a colossal journey with 550 acre of barren land and devoted two decades to build a whole forest! Mulai Kathoni forest is now a wholesome ecosystem inhabited by Bengal tigers, Indian rhinoceros, deer, rabbits, monkeys and several varieties of birds, including vultures and opulent flora.

The ‘people’s forest’, Mulai Kathoni also supports nearly 250 families, mostly belonging to the Mising community, by augmenting livelihoods and food security.

Ketetong- a tribal village

Ketetong, a Singpho tribal village is located on the banks of the Buri Dehing river near Margherita in Tinsukia district. In Singpho language, Ket means “brick” and Tong means “scattered” and the name of the village has been coined with the amalgamation of these words.

The village is a vibrant display of the multihued Singpho tradition and customs, their dresses and food delicacies. The Ketetong Buddhist Monastery nearby is sure to leave tourist enthralled. The Singpho are believed to be India’s first tea drinkers and it was the Singpho King Bessa Gaum, who introduced tea to Robert Bruce in the year 1823. The “Phalap” is a unique handmade brew of the Singphos. The traditional method is to process the tea by first heating the leaves in a metal pan until they turn brown, and then it is sun-dried for a few days. The sun-dried leaves are tightly packed in bamboo hollows and smoked over a fire. In a week’s time, the processed tea hardens. It is then preserved for up to 10 years and small portions are sliced off each time to prepare a fresh cup of tea. Like wine, the tea matures with time and gives a golden-orange colour. The organic and traditional method of preparation retains its medicinal value. The phalap and a traditional Singpho meal is a pleasant experience for a tourist.

Sarthebari

Ln Assam, bell metal products are as ubiquitous as bamboo handicrafts, making it the second-largest handicraft industry of Assam. It is in Sarthebari, situated 90 km from Guwahati, that one gets to see the manner in which the metal is crafted into singular pieces for use and display. The technology is not state-of-art, but simple and wondrous. And just to watch the craftsmen employ their anvils, hammers and pincers, to shape and create dinnerware can be joyous and an enchanting experience.

Karbi Village, Dolmora,
Chandrasingh Rongpi
Gaon, Silim Khuwa.

When you visit Kaziranga National Park, try to manage the length of your stay for a trip to the Karbi villages close-by. One of the oldest tribes of Assam, the Karbis have been residing near the Park for ages apart from the sprawling Karbi-Anglong district in the heart of Assam. Their villages are repositories of a unique culture with roots in animism.

Near the Karbi village is Dolmara, that stands out because of its unique religious tradition. Located at a distance of 20 kms from Kohora, many villagers here are now attached to the Guru Lokhimon Ashram, where a form of Vaishnavism, with vegetarianism as the core, is practiced.

Close to Kaziranga is Chandrasingh Rongpi Gaon, a small picturesque village where residents—although Christians—still perform rituals like San-ki-mi-kechu before eating the first bamboo shoots of the season.

Another interesting village is Silim Khuwa, 25 kms from Kohora. You can walk through this hamlet —witnessing the carefree life of its folk, away from the humdrum of city life. Opt for a three-hour trek & birding in the hills through tea and rubber plantations, seeing locals going about their daily chores.

Ranthali

Ranthali is perhaps the 'jewel' in the crown of Assam's rich repertoire of craft villages. Famed for its beautiful and exotic 'Asomiya Gohona' (Assamese jewellery), Ranthali is a place that lives and nurtures a legacy of artisanal skills and interesting history. Home to skilled artisan families, it is approximately 120 km from Guwahati, near Nagaon town, and is a wonderful destination for a day trip.

North Guwahati

In North Guwahati, one finds history at every turn. About 25 km from Guwahati, once known as Durjaya, it was the capital of ancient Kamarupa. With river Brahmaputra skirting along the east, it is also known as Raja-Duar or King's Gate. Besides several architectural vestiges, including inscriptions—each a masterpiece of our ancient heritage and civilization—North Guwahati is home to famous temple sites such as Dirgheswari, Daul-Govinda, Kurma-Janardan, Ashwaktanta, Rudreswar, and Manikarneswar.

The jewels in the crown, however, are Madan Kamdev in Baihata Chariali, and Pingaleswar. Stone temple carvings depicting everyday life and rituals in the former and dancing figures with other ancient relics in the latter are exemplars of master craftsmanship. They speak of a culturally flourishing era and offer a glimpse of Assam's vibrant heritage.

Silchang

Silchang village, located in Morigaon district, exhibits the historical customs of the Tiwa kings and their megalithic tradition. A cluster of Megalithic structures, or dolmens at Silchang reveal a living tradition of the royal assembly which was held in the past. There are 17 dolmens, with each assigned to a specific administrative post representing the erstwhile royal assembly traditional seat. The village shrine, Sri Sri Shiva Jadav Devalaya and Deorajar Kirtan Ghar represent the prayer center of the Tiwa community. Close by is Dayang Belguri, which hosts the annual Jonbeel Mela, a three-day fair held during Magh Bihu (January) where the ancient barter system can still be witnessed.

Hojai

Hojai, located at a distance of 171 km from Guwahati is a treasure trove of Archeological sites in Assam. The present geographical area belonged to the renowned Kapili Valley Kingdom, and in medieval times it was a part of Dimasa Kachari Kingdom .

The Rajabari Archeological site is situated at a distance of 10 km from Hojai town. This site is a group of six Siva temples enclosed within a brick build boundary wall. Three of the temples are dedicated to Lord Shiva and Goddess Uma Maheshawari. The site has numerous stone relics dating back to the 11th Century AD.

The Shankhadevi Archeological site has a group of three temples on the banks of Jujijan, a small tributary of the Kapili river. The site is datable to 10th – 11th century AD.

Na Nath Archeological site, located in Kenduguri, has eight brick temples divided in a symmetrical plan facing each other in two lines. The site is unique for its terracotta plaques laid horizontally on the outer face of the wall of two temple plinth. It can be dated to 7th and 8th century.

The Sivpur Archeological site consists of remains of two stone temples in the form of mounds. The temples are dedicated to Lord Shiva. The site is said to belong to the 10th - 11th century.

Natun Sapartari

Natun Sapartari is a placid Assamese village located near Chhaygaon in Kamrup District of Assam. A village walk is a perfect day activity amidst the paddy fields followed by an ethnic lunch along with a host family of the village. The mustard blooms in winter give a vibrant yellow tinge to the vast agricultural fields. A country boat ride to view the fresh water dolphins (endangered species of Platanista gangetica or Xihu in Assamese) and numerous migratory birds is a tourist's delight.

The traditional Boat Race is held annually in August/September, or on the death anniversary of saint scholar Srimanta Sankardeva (as per Assamese calendar). In the month of January, Chhaigaon Loka Festival is organized in the region displaying the heritage, dance and ethnic cuisine of the multi-cultural communities.

The neighbouring villages participate in these events exemplifying communal harmony and Assam's syncretism.

Two large, golden lion statues are positioned on either side of the central aisle, facing each other. The floor is a dark, polished surface. The overall atmosphere is one of historical and cultural richness.

Mayong

The mystic village Mayong is located in Morigaon district of Assam on the banks of the river Brahmaputra. The cradle of black magic in India, Mayong attracts tourists due to its tradition of indigenous practices and tantric belief system.

Mayong finds its reference in mythological epics like the Mahabharata where Ghatotkacha (son of the Pandava Bhim) took part in the battle of Mahabharata with his magical supremacy.

Some magical acts are performed by the villagers even today. Also famous are the fortune tellers, palm readers who use traditional methods in predicting a person's future. Black magic is used to treat ailments and find lost belongings by the bez or oja (traditional magic healers).

The Mayong Central Museum and Emporium houses a rare and valuable collection of manuscripts, archive of oral traditions written in the local language, terracotta artefacts, information practices dating back to the 12th to 18th century, stone sculptures attributed to 8th-9th century.

Nearby is the Pobitora Wildlife Sanctuary which has the highest concentration of one-horned rhinos. Over 200 migratory birds are also found here along with other animals like Asiatic Buffalo, Leopard, Wild bear, Civet Cat and various reptiles.

The temple commands a magnificent view of the valley below, smeared with the grandeur of the scarlet skyline in its sunrise and sunsets.

A walk in a nearby Rabha village to witness the community's way of life and relish an ethnic meal is a perfect option for tourists.

Numerous festivals like the Baikho festival, Suwori festival, to name a few, can be witnessed in the region. During the month of May-June, the Rabha community celebrates the annual Baikho religious festival. As part of the ritual, the priest of the community runs over burning charcoal to seek blessings for a good harvest. The century old Suwori festival is celebrated in Boko town by the Garo, Rabha, Boro, Hajong, Koch-Rajbongshi communities in the month of Bohag (April) during Rongali Bihu. The festival displays the vibrant multi-cultural collage of Assam.

A 20 kms drive to the Chamaria village gives a glimpse of Assam's cultural heritage. The Chamaria Sattra (Assamese Monastery), which was established in 1588 by Bar Vishnu Ata, is one of the oldest Sattras in Assam.

Bhairabkunda

Gethsemane, a man-made woodland near Bhairabkunda in Bodoland's Udalguri district, leaves one awestruck. Driving through Gethsemane to Bhairabkunda, one marvels at the handiwork of the local community in transforming 750 hectares of barren land into a green cover, making it a home for animals and birds.

Bhairabkunda itself is a unique attraction - bound by Bhutan and Arunachal Pradesh - with its famous Shiva temple, situated in Bhutanese territory. If one visits Bodoland on a Tuesday, one can even witness the worship of the Shijou plant, the symbol of Obonglaoree, the supreme God of the Bodos—the largest ethnic and linguistic community of the Brahmaputra Valley.

Gauripur

Gauripur is located in Dhubri District of Assam on the banks of the river Gadadhar, 15 kms from the Indo-Bangladesh Border. It was a major town in western Assam during the Mughal period. Later on during the British period it gained significance under the Zamindary of Raja Prabhat Chandra Barua. Raja Prabhat Chandra Barua can be called the chief architect of modern Gauripur town. He built the famous Matiabag Palace in 1914. It is a variable living museum of the royal family of Gauripur. The Gauripur Town Committee is another landmark of the area, established in 1919. It is one of the oldest urban local bodies of Assam where dynamic schemes of development were adopted.

Raja Prabhat Chandra Barua was also a patron of music, arts, drama and indigenous culture of the region. He along with his granddaughter, Smt Pratima Pandey Barua sowed the seeds of Goalparialokasangeeet (folk song). Moreover, his son, Shri Pramathesh Chandra Barua, was a director, actor, writer and cinematographer who became a pioneer of Indian Cinema. His film Apradhi was the first Indian film which was shot under artificial lights. In 1935 he went on to direct the classic film Devdas in Bengali and later in Hindi with K.L. Saigal as the main lead. About 6 kms from Gauripur is a quaint village, Asharikandi, famed for the fascinating terracotta and fine art products. This traditional craft is practiced with a special type of soil found here known as hiramati which nurtures the 'Asharikandi' style of Terracotta.

Amguripara

Amguripara village, near Dudhnoi in Goalpara district was a forerunner in the agricultural revolution in Assam, under the guidance of Shri Upendra Rabha. This village is famous for its black rice variety, which is often termed as a super food, with a prominent concentration of nutrition such as amino acids, zinc, copper, iron, carotene and other vitamins. This black rice variety of rice is now exported throughout the world.

A tranquil walk along the beautiful paddy fields of Amguripara, with the rhythmic clatter of the Taat-xaal (weaving looms) provides an experience of a lifetime.

Tukreswari Mandir

Tukreswari Mandir is an ancient Hindu temple located in Tukra village in Goalpara district of Assam. The temple was built atop the Tukreswari hill by Bijni King Kumud Narayan in the 17th century. A short trek (about 700 stairs) to the top of the Tukreswari hill leads to two temples, a Shiva Temple and the Tukreswari Mandir also known as Joya – Vijoya temple. The temple is dedicated to Hindu Goddess Sati.

The temple is also famed for the Assamese macaque (Macaca assamensis), a macaque of the Old World monkey family native to South and Southeast Asia. They are so much an integral part of the temple that they have become attuned to the temple environment and even recognize the voices of the priests.

A visit to Tukreswari Mandir can be combined with other tourist destinations of Goalpara.

Nakkati hill

Nakkati Hill, located near Dewangaon in Bongaigaon district of Assam, is an alluring hill and its peak is soaked in exquisite beauty. Nakkati, meaning a cut-off nose, gets its name from the shape of the edge of the hill similar to a cut nose. An approximate 3 hour trek through the forest, rocks and streams, leads to the peak of Nakkati Hill which is at an altitude of 429 meters, the highest peak in the lower Assam region.

The Nakkati Hill is an inimitable hill top to watch the stunning sunset with the breeze refreshing the soul! The spectacular view of the endless vistas, river and the Assamese villages are a sight to be experienced!

A new eco-tourism camp site has been developed with facilities for overnight camp accommodation, right under the sky.

Rangsapara

A 15 km drive from Goalpara town leads to the tranquil Rangsapara village, declared as Assam's cleanest village in the year 2016-17 by the Public Health Engineering Department. Rangsapara is inhabited by the Garo tribe consisting about 92 households and boasts of a literacy rate of about 70 per cent. With its ethos on cleanliness, the committee has strict restrictions on alcohol, drugs and use of plastic and the village has no record of any police case till date, making it a 'no crime' village. A picturesque village walk familiarizes one to the lifestyle of the community and the farming activities, consisting of growing vegetables, paddy and rubber plantations. An ethnic meal at a Garo home is a highly recommended activity.

Shri Shri Kalibari Shiva Than & Pari Hareswar Devalaya

Situated at the banks of the river Kaladia, Kalibari Shri Shri Shiva Than was established in the year 1914. It is approximately 38 km from Barpeta Town. The main attraction of the than is the 208 year old banyan tree, which is supposedly Asia's second largest Banyan tree. Visitors come to seek blessings from the Kalpavriksha, the wish-fulfilling tree.

Shri Shri Pari Hareswar Devalaya is located at Dubi, in Patshala at a distance of 40 km from Barpeta Town. Dedicated to Lord Shiva, the temple is said to have been built by the legendary king Bibhutivarmana during the 7th century. In the temple beside Lord Shiva, puja is offered to Goddess Durga and Lord Bishnu. The dance form 'Devadasi-Nritya' is believed to have originated in this temple.

Umswai Valley – Hill Tiwa

A mere 100 kilometres from Guwahati in West Karbi Anglong district is Umswai Valley - Assam's bamboo county. A scenic cluster of villages inhabited by indigenous Tiwa tribe, here bamboo dominates the village scape—from groves to homestead walls and gates. The Hill Tiwas are simple, soft-spoken, courteous people with a flair for cooking some delectable ethnic delicacies. The tradition of Shikdamakha, where villagers habitually sweep the roads twice a week earning them maximum points in the cleanliness sub-index of the national gauge, is another unique feature of the place. The neighboring village of Bormarjong, one of the oldest and largest villages, has many stories, folklore and around 2000 rock monoliths. Every March, on top of small hillock at Amswai Pinungon, a monolith is erected and prayers offered to the spirits of ancestors in a ceremony called Phidri Chongkhang.

Sampardisa Village (Dima Hasao)

Sampardisa Village in Dima Hasao District is located about 12 km from the district headquarters Haflong. It is an important rural tourism site, with recreational and accommodation facilities. Ethnic cuisines, handloom and handicraft creations, glimpse of local dances and music are activities that entice a visitor in the exotic village.

Around 4 km from Sampardisa is the Bendao Baiglai Waterfall in the Abong river. The area is adorned with three magnificent waterfalls nestled amid the lush green forests of Dima Hasao. The name of the waterfalls gets its meaning from Dimas language, where 'Bendao' means two sisters and 'Baiglai' means to jump. The legend describes that two sisters took their own lives by jumping from one of these three waterfalls. Bendao is heaven for adventure lovers and trekking enthusiasts!

Indigenous cuisines of Assam

The confluence of varied cultural influences in the Assam valley has led to the staggering variety and flavours in Assamese food. Much like the geographical diversity of the land, the authentic Assamese dishes are extensive and has its own league in the culinary world. It involves a style of cooking that is a confluence of cooking habits of the hills that favour both fermentation and drying, and those from the plains that provide fresh vegetables and an abundance of fish and meat. Both are centred on the main ingredient — rice.

A mixture of indigenous styles with considerable regional variations and some external influences, the traditional way of Assamese cooking is similar to those of several other South-East Asian countries. Owing to the abundance in the region, Assamese cuisine is characterized by the use of an extremely wide variety of plant as well as animal products. It is characterized by very little use of spices and strong flavours, due mainly to the use of these endemic exotic fruits, vegetables, meat and fish. The exotic taste of the herbs, rustic feel of the dishes and a distinctive character is what drives the Assamese food.

গুণৰো নাই শেষ
ভাৰতৰে পূৰ্ব দিশৰ
সূৰ্য্য উঠা দেশ।
গোটেই জীৱন বিচাৰিলেও
অলেখ দিবস ৰাতি
অমম দেশৰ দৰে নেপাওঁ
ইমান ৰমাল মাটি ”

*In the words of Bharat Ratna Dr. Bhupen Hazarika,
The beauty that is Assam, enumerates infinite stature.
Lying to the North East of the India, it surmounts with the rising sun! Even a search of a lifetime, traversing through the day and night; will never unearth a fascinating land as mighty as Assam!*
